The cry of fire in a church, or a theatre, or any other place crowded with persons, produces a panic. It is not so much the fire that is to be guarded against as the panie; and the panic will be dangerous in fire in a crowded hall where the persons present can see for themselves that egress may be accomplished in a minute is not what it is in a hall where all the persons present see for themselves that the aisles are packed with chairs and benches and crowded with men, women, and children, who not only cannot assist the throng to escape, but are incapable of escaping themselves. Dear Sir,—I was surprised, when reading your paper yesterday, at seeing this caption to my article, "A Sunday Letter from Rev. L. A. Cutler." I do not write letters on Sunday—I do not read secular papers on Sunday, and am opposed to the publication and circulation of Sunday papers.

I respectfully ask for the publication of this note in justice to myself and to my brother ministers, with whom I stand in honest opposition to the Sunday newspaper.

Trial by Jury.

Trial by Jury.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

Trial by jury is perhaps the best mode ever devised by the wit of man for the decision of cases involving the rights of freemen. The Anglo-Saxon has tenaciously clung to it for many centuries as the paladium of his liberties and the safeguard of his property. Yet all that is good in it depends absolutely upon the manner of selecting to fix property. Yet all that is good in it depends absolutely upon the manner of selecting the jury. Every objection of any force which has been urged against jury trial can be traced to the mode of any force which has been urged against jury trial can be traced to the mode of choosing the jury. Every care should be jealously guarded by law so that none but good citizens can find their way into the jury-box. If there be fraud or any unfairness in selecting the jury it brings disgrace upon this time-honored mode of deciding causes. Jury trial ceases to be a blessing: causes. Jury trial ceases to be a blessing

Times-Democrate makes several very good points. It says:

"We are surprised that some of the northern papers have not commented on this fact. We do not know that it proves anything one way or the other, but some of our more bitter contemporaries might easily torture it into showing depravity of some sort on the part of the southern people.

"The Chicago Tribune indeed is shocked to find that a majority of the negroes lynched last year were disposed of in the South. In view of the fact that the South contains some nine tenths of the negroes, this is not as extraordinary as it may appear to the Tribune.

"We would call the Tribune's attention to the fact that mobs lynched three times as many people as were legally hung in Indiana last year, and that all the hangings in lowa, Kausas, Nebraska, Wiscousin, and Michigan were done by Judge Ignch in the section styled the West, and of which Chicago is the capital, the lynchings were more than seven to one as compared with the legal executions."

It would have been decidedly better for the Governor and for all the people of his steep thon and without consulting with anybody.—Alexandria Gazetie.

Under the Lion's Paw.

England has pretty effectually bulldozed Portugal in the matter of the East African question. It was a clear case of liou and "feist" from the beginning. Under ordinary circumstances the sympathies of the more dwould have been with the Portuguese. All the civilized world loves fair play as all the world loves a lover, but in this instance the Portuguese in East Africa are the exception that proved the rule of love for fair play. For three centuries Portugal has squatted at the gates of many of the avenues that lead to the interior of Africa and for the last two centuries has been snapping at the heels of all who have entered those gates. The poley of Lisbon has been a dog-in-the-manger policy, combined with one of duplicity in everything that appertained to Portuguese have been a blight upon the Dark Continent. Their cupidity, as did the cupidity of the early Spanish explorers; has cursed their every possession, and it seems like retributive justice that that sin should have brought both Spain and Portugal to the condition of less than second-rate Powers. When, therefore, the whole history of Portuguese claims and policy in Africa is considered, it is not surprising that, unequal as was the field, it should be rather grait.

Equal Taxation. To the Editor of the Dispatch :

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

There has been a clamor for years about the inequality of taxation. There is a plenty of property in this State for taxation if properly assessed, and I think a greater part of the trouble lies in the unequal assessment. In our State only one man is appointed to assess the real property in every county. There may be one or more men in every county capable of this work, but the trouble is do we get that man or the right man appointed. In other States a board of three men are appointed to assess property, and if that was the law here I think property would be more equally assessed and a larger amount of taxable values would be found, too. I never thought it was fair for the State, or this note in justice to myself and to my brother ministers, with whom I stand in honest opposition to the Sunday newspaper. Truly yours, L. A. COTLER.

The letter appeared on Sunday, and the caption in question was used to indicate that the letter discussed a moral question, and was therefore, in our opinion, entitled to be called a "Sunday Letter."

West Virginia alone has a greater coal area than Great Britain, France, and Germany combined. These three countries have a tombined coal area of 15.756 square miles, while West Virginia's coal area is 16,000, while West Virginia's coal area is 16,000, while West Virginia's coal area is 16,000, and with these new assessments and the deed-books before them revise the work of the assessor and pass upon it before it be adopted. That would cost very little more, as these men could be paid a per diem while seem of the countries have a surer greater coal area than Pennsylvania, Mary-

Cancer of the Skin has never been known to be cured by the knife or caustic salves, and any honest practitioner will tell you that this treatment only hastens the fatal results. Thousands of cases of Epithelioma (skin) Cancers, and a great many cases of Scirrhus Cancers have been cured by the use of Swift's Specific. It forces the poison out through the cancer itself and the pores of the skin.

Mr. A. C. Tilly, of Arcadia, La., writes the following under date of March 25th, 1889: "I have suffered with a malignant form of scrofula for twenty-five years, which after wards developed into a cancer. In 1875 I had the cancer cut out, but not cured. Shortly after this the scrofula broke out all over my head and body in ulcers and eruptions, the ulcers were full of humor and continually running. I was in such a horrible condition from its effect that I could not sleep, and the strain on me was so great that I feared I would less my mind. I consulted physician after physician and took thousands of dollars worth of medicine without receiving any benefit. Early in the spring of 1884 I was induced to try SWIFT'S SPECIFIC (S. S. S.) That medicine had a wonderful effect on me, and in a short time I was entirely cured of the cancer and scrofula that I had suffered a living death from for twenty-five years."
